A Kentucky-born feminist creative and two-time finalist for the Sundance Institute/YouTube New Voices Lab, who writes determined, contradictory, and vital female characters. Passionate about exploring the meaning of family and how that one word can be such a universal concept yet unique to each person who describes it. Excellent collaborator, strong organizational skills, and extremely detail-oriented with a background in UCB improv and sketch. Requires bag of Sour Patch Watermelons and/or large green juice when writing for long periods of time because balance is key.
